

Labeling: Crayfish External Anatomy

Read the definitions below, then label the crayfish diagram.

Abdomen - The abdomen is the segmented tail area. The swimmerets, telson, and uropods are attached to the abdomen.

Carcapace - The protective shell (skeleton) of the cephalothorax.

Cephalic groove - An indentation in the carapace between the head region and the thorax region.

Cephalothorax - The combined head and thorax (this animal has no neck). The cephalothorax contains the heart, gills, and stomach.

Chelipeds - One of two big claws used for defense and food handling.

Eyes - The two eyes are located towards the front.

Long antennae - Two long, sensory organs towards the front of the crayfish.

Short antennae - Two short antennae, also called antennules.

Rostrum - The spike above the eyes.

Swimmerets - Five pairs of short appendages on the abdomen; they are used for swimming.

Tail fan - The telson and the four uropods. It is used for backwards swimming.

Telson - The single, broad-most section of the tail fan.

Uropods - Two pairs of appendages on the tail fan that surround the telson.

Walking legs - Four pairs of long, jointed legs used for walking. The gills are attached to the tops of the walking legs.
